

Powerful Development

The chances are, you don't take as much time for your own development as you would like to. You may not be aware of how you like to learn, what skills you want to develop or where you want to get to with your development.

This course gives you an ideal opportunity to take stock and learn about your own strengths and development opportunities. We will help you to see what your day-to-day opportunities for development are, as well as for more formal learning, so that you can identify your preferences to leave with a structured plan to put into action.

What will you learn?

- ⇒ How to take stock of the present and the future.
- ⇒ Acknowledge the factors that can impact progressing our development.
- ⇒ Understand your preferred method(s) of learning and how to choose development that targets these preferences.
- ⇒ Application of learning to your situation, helping you to leave having already started your self-development journey.
- ⇒ Create a positive plan of action to embed your learning.

What will you cover?

- ⇒ The importance of self-development
- ⇒ Taking stock of your strengths and leveraging these in your development
- ⇒ Gap and SWOT analysis
- ⇒ On-the-job opportunities for development
- ⇒ The 70:20:10 model of learning
- ⇒ Preferences to learning

Who is it for?

Anyone who would like to take some time out to focus on their own development and receive guidance on how to achieve their personal goals.

How long will it take?

Half-day